When a signed cheque or a cheque book is lost or stolen, the person who is legally entitled to request for stop payment of the cheque must immediately report such loss in writing to the Bank and go through the stop payment procedures set out by the legislations (if any).

When cheques are sent through the post or otherwise, the words "OR BEARER" should be deleted and the cheque crossed.

Applications for a new cheque book may be made by presenting the duly completed and signed cheque book application form contained therein to the Bank or by any other means acceptable to the Bank. The Bank, may at its discretion, refuse to issue a cheque book.

For clarification:

- a. if the person who is legally entitled to request for stop payment of the cheque identifies the cheque in question by reference to other details in addition to the cheque number, the Bank shall not be responsible to ensure that other details correspond with the details of the cheque in question identified by number;

- c. if the person who is legally entitled to request for stop payment of the cheque cancels (countermand) payment of a cheque by means of an instruction which cannot be verified by the Bank (not limiting to by telephone or facsimile instructions), the Bank shall not be required (obliged) to take any action; however, the Bank may in its discretion and without responsibility follow such instruction.

When the person who is legally entitled to request for stop payment of the cheque cancels (countermand) payment of a cheque by means of an instruction to the Bank which cannot be verified by the Bank and regardless of whether or not the Bank acts on such instruction, the person who is legally entitled to request for stop payment of the cheque shall immediately confirm such instruction to the Bank in writing and in a manner so that the Bank may verify the authenticity of such instruction. The Bank shall only be bound to follow the instruction once it is authenticated and shall not be liable for having followed the unauthenticated instruction should that instruction has been incorrect (erroneous), false (spurious), unclear (ambiguous).

- 15.5 There may be risks involved in accepting foreign currency cheques as payment or settlement of transactions. In some countries, there are laws dealing with the handling of cheques sent for clearing or collection that will entitle a cheque to be returned even after clearing and the proceeds are paid to the payee. For example, for cheques drawn on US banks, the paying bank will have the right to seek refund of a cheque that is subsequently found to be fraudulently drawn, fraudulently endorsed or fraudulently altered within a period of up to 6 years. For a US Treasury cheque, this refund period may be indefinite. The Bank is entitled to seek repayment from the account holder of any cheque required to be repaid or refunded. This right of recourse remains possible throughout the refund period mentioned above and is regardless of whether the cheque is sent for collection or purchased by the Bank. The deposit of any foreign currency cheques is accepted by the Bank subject to the following terms and conditions:

- a. In accepting cheques drawn on banks abroad, the Bank reserves the right to decide which cheques to purchase and which to send for collection. Where the Bank purchases the cheques, the Bank shall credit the account holder's account (using the Bank's prevailing buying rate) with the proceeds immediately, subject to having recourse to the account holder in the event of dishonour. The purchase of cheques may be subject to the condition that the proceeds credited to the account holder's account cannot be withdrawn for a period as determined by the Bank taking into account the required clearing time for cheques in question and which will be specified in the credit advice to be sent to the account holder in confirmation of the transaction.
- b. Where the Bank sends a cheque for collection, this will be done subject to the rules contained in ICC Publication No. 522 and the proceeds of the cheque will only be credited to the account holder's account once payment is received from the bank abroad.
- c. In the event that cheques purchased are dishonoured or cheques collected are subsequently liable to be repaid or refunded by applicable laws and regulations, the Bank will debit the account holder's account with the value of the cheque as calculated using the Bank's prevailing selling rate or the original buying rate, whichever is higher, plus any charges.
- d. Overseas charges (if any) will be debited to the account holder's account.
- e. Cheques received after the relevant cut-off times set by the Bank from time to time will be processed in the next business day.

16. Exchange Rate

Except otherwise agreed by the Bank and the account holder, the exchange rate used in payment application/transaction request involving currency conversion shall be solely determined by the Bank in reasonable commercial manner. The Bank may determine such exchange rate based on real-time quotation and booking from relevant funding market, and since the market rate keeps fluctuating, such rate determined by the Bank may not be the best rate of the relevant date and may be (even materially) worse than the Bank's board rate.

17. Variation of Terms

The terms herein and those pertaining to any service provided by the Bank may, at the Bank's sole discretion, be changed from time to time by way of publishing, placing or displaying announcements or notices on the Bank's websites or in the Bank's premises or sending notice to the account holder in such other method as the Bank may decide. If the account holder does not close the account or cancel the services prior to the expiry of the notice period, the account holder shall be deemed have agreed to such change.

20. Bank's Account Closure Right

- a. To the extent permitted by law, the Bank shall have the right to close any and/or all accounts (including but not limited to joint account, time deposit accounts) of an account holder at any time by giving 30 days prior notice to the account holder.
- b. "Account Trading Restriction Measures" means any measures for freezing accounts or restricting account transactions, including but not limited to, suspending non-counter business, limiting the size or frequency of account transactions, and restricting payments from and/or into accounts.

- b. Without limiting or affecting any right of the Bank under these terms and conditions, this Clause 32 applies to the Enterprise Settlement Accounts.
 - (1) The Enterprise Settlement Account may commence to be used for fund transfers as of the date of its opening.
 - (2) The account holder shall cooperate with the Bank to complete account reconciliations at the frequency determined by the Bank (in any event, not less than once a quarter of year). If the account holder fails to respond within the time limit for a reconciliation, or the result of reconciliation is inconsistent, the Bank shall have the right to require the cooperation from the account holder to find out the reasons and take Account Trading Restriction Measures.
 - (3) For any change regarding the name, legal representative or person-in-charge, or any other supporting document for account opening, the account holder shall submit a change request to the Bank within 5 business days. If the Bank

33. Risk Disclosure

The Bank will at all times endeavour to introduce products the Bank reasonably believes are likely to be suitable for the account holder based on the information provided by the account holder. Ultimately the decision to invest in specific products shall be made by the account holder. The account holder's failure or inadequacy of providing personal information to the Bank will restrict the Bank's ability to introduce products and services which are likely to be suitable for the account holder.

This risk disclosure statement provides an overview of the risks that the account holder may take when using the Bank's personal financial services and products (including without limitation wealth management products, insurance products sold by the Bank on agency basis, deposit, currency exchange and loan services). This risk disclosure statement cannot, of course, disclose all the risks. This risk disclosure statement is not and shall not be deemed as investment, legal or tax advice. The account holder should place no reliance on the Bank to give advice or make recommendations. If the account holder is uncertain or has not understood any aspect of this risk disclosure statement, the account holder should seek independent professional advice.

 Credit Risk: The personal financial services and products may involve credit risk of the Bank (and other parties that may be involved in the relevant services and/or products) which may affect the ability to meet the payment obligations set out in the agreed terms.

 Foreign Exchange

Risk: Where investment is denominated in currencies other than the account holder's base currency, or where the account holder converts funds from another currency for the purpose of making investment, there is the risk that if the foreign exchange markets move against the account holder, then upon maturity or redemption the net proceeds converted into the account holder's base currency or the currency from which the initial funds were converted (as the case may be) may be significantly less than the figure on the date when the investment was made, and that any income or gains made may be entirely negated. Where the account holder's indebtedness to the Bank is secured by assets denominated in a currency different from the currency of the indebtedness, the foreign exchange market may move against the account holder and the risk of loss can be substantial. In the case of foreign currency deposits, the net return on foreign currency deposits will depend on market conditions prevailing at the time of maturity or withdrawal. In this regard, the account holder may suffer loss as a result of depreciation of the value of the currency paid or as a result of foreign exchange controls. Such loss may offset the net return on the deposit and may result in losses to such deposits. Repayment or payment of amounts due to the account holder may be delayed or prevented by exchange controls or other actions imposed by governmental or regulatory bodies.

 Liquidity Risk: Where the account holder chooses to place deposit or make investment for a tenor, the account holder has to ensure to make adequate provision for emergency cash needs. Certain products cannot be sold or transferred by investor to a third party and investor may not be allowed to withdraw, redeem or terminate all or part of certain investment products or insurance products prior to maturity. The account holder will probably suffer loss of return and/or principal when early withdrawing a term deposit, redeeming an investment product, or surrender an insurance product.

- * Inflation Risk: Inflation may reduce the value of the account holder's deposit and/or investment.
- * Return Risk: Investment products and investment linked products have investment elements and returns may vary. Investors may receive low, or even no return for the entire tenor of the investment.
- * Market Risk: Many factors can affect the value/performance of the asset(s) linked to investment products and investment linked products, including without limitation the political and economic environment, business conditions, investor sentiment and confidence. All of these factors may have an effect on the local and/or global markets.
- * Principal Risk: Some products are not principal protected, and some products provide principal protection or partial principal protection subject to certain conditions. Subject to the terms and conditions governing the relevant products and other relevant factors (including without limitation, interest rate market movement, underlying performance, market volatility and liquidity, etc), investor may suffer loss of the principal when redeeming the products.
- * Redemption Risk: Certain products may not allow early redemption. For those redeemable products, the investor is required to visit the Bank premise to complete and submit a redemption application. The investor shall be aware that the price indicated when the redemption application of a redeemable product is submitted is indicative and for reference only and the actual redemption price may be different (or even significantly different) from the indicative price. Investor may inquire his/her relationship manager for details.

34. Governing Law
